Long run processes of socio-economic change generate prodigious problems of social conflict and social control, and governments responsible for these processes must therefore manage the resultant conflict. Consequently, the success or failure of a government's management of such conflicts is a crucial factor in development outcomes.u003cbr /u003eu003cbr /u003eThis volume investigates the political struggle for development specifically in two vital regions - East Asia and Latin America. This analysis calls into question the dominant emphasis on institutional and cultural bases for stable growth. A careful historical account of the two regions is presented, which permits the rigorous testing of conventional wisdoms regarding development. Ofu0026#xa0;importance to a broad range of academics in the spheres of development studies, politics, political economy and sociology, this book will also makeu0026#xa0;an interesting read foru0026#xa0;those with a general interest in these areas.
